the Lucky Seven.

Tammany's Congressional nominating conventions were held last night in all of the eleven districts which are in Manhattan and the Bronx, and seven of the present members of the House of Representatives were renominated. They were Representatives Sullivan, Goldfogle, Sulzer, Hearst, Cockran, Ruppert, and Goulden.

Edward Swann was nominated to succeed Francis Burton Harrison, Charles A. Towne to succeed Ira Edgar Rider, and Franklin Leonard, Jr., to succeed Francis E. Shober. In the only Congress District in the two boroughs where a Republican was elected two years ago, the Fifteenth, M. Francis Loughman was made the nominee. Everything passed off smoothly at the various conventions.

In the Eighth Congress District Timothy D. Sullivan was named for a second term without incident. In the Ninth District Convention, held at 266 Grand Street, where Henry M. Goldfogle was named, several of the speakers demanded that the United States Government cause European Governments to recognize the passports of Jewish-American citizens and American citizens of Armenian birth.

Representative C. D. Van Duzer of Nevada addressed the convention in the Tenth District, where William Sulzer was renominated, and told those who attended that in the event of a Democratic House of Representatives being elected in November Mr. Sulzer would be the unanimous choice of his party colleagues for Speaker.

William Randolph Hearst was renominated in the Eleventh District, at the convention held at 267 West Twenty-fifth Street, without incident.

W. Bourke Cockran appeared before the convention in the Twelfth District, held at 222 East Thirty-first Street, and in accepting the nomination made an extended speech on the issues of the day. Mr. Cockran first referred to the harmony existing in the party, declaring that all strife now had ceased.

"If you will look for a moment at the history of your party," he said, "you will see that it never has been defeated except when it has been divided, and Democrats always have been divided on matters of principle, not on questions of expediency.

"Democracy is a faith, and faith demands sacrifices. Republicanism, on the other hand, is an appetite, and appetite demands only gratification.

"I am justified in saying that corruption is universal in the departments at Washington, because every effort to investigate these departments was defeated in the House by Republican majorities when proposed by members of either side. There could have been no reason for preventing an investigation except the knowledge that it would have affected men whom the Administration could not afford to have exposed.

"Next to preventing the development of tariff plunder into an open system of direct bounties, the most important fruit of Judge Parker's election will be an exhaustive examination of the public service and a thorough cleansing of all the departments. He may not be able to change the method by which revenue is to be raised, but he will be able to see that revenue, however raised, is honestly expended."

Before the meeting of the convention in the Thirteenth District word had been received from Harry Payne Whitney that his business interests would not permit of his becoming the candidate to succeed Francis Burton Harrison, the nominee this year for Lieutenant Governor. Col. George R. Dyer of the Twelfth Regiment also declined the nomination, which then was given to Edward Swann, an attorney, of 40 Wall Street.

The convention was held at Broadway and Twenty-seventh Street, where a friendly contest for the nomination was made by James F. Mack, who last year made a strong run for the Assembly in the heavily Republican Twenty-fifth District. Mr. Mack polled thirty votes in the convention.

Ex-Senator Charles A. Towne, who has represented the State of Minnesota in the House of Representatives and in the United States Senate as well, and who declined the Populist nomination for Vice President in 1900, was named in the Fourteenth District without opposition. He succeeds Congressman Rider, who was turned down by orders from Charles F. Murphy at Fourteenth Street.

Congressman Rider was asked to resign last Winter and become Secretary to the Fire Department in order that Mr. Towne should be elected to Congress at the same special election which sent Mr. Cockran to Washington to succeed Mayor McClellan. At that time Mr. Rider declined to resign and his turn down followed yesterday, despite three appeals made by him to Mr. Murphy within the last few days. The convention was held at 334 East Seventy-ninth Street. Mr. Rider's friends did nothing in his behalf.

M. Francis Loughman, who was named in the Republican Fifteenth District, is connected with the United States Supply Company. He is related to the Plant family, is thirty-eight years old, is very wealthy, and lives at 50 Hamilton Place.

Franklin Leonard, Jr., who was named in the Seventeenth District, after the turn-down of Representative Shober, which was ordered from Tammany Hall several days ago, is a lawyer, thirty-four years old, and lives at 752 West End Avenue. He is a Yale graduate, and is President of the Nameoki Club, the Tammany organization in the Twenty-first Assembly District. The convention in this district was held at 2311 Eighth Avenue.

KINGS MAN FOR CONGRESS.

Brooklyn Democrats Renominate President Representatives in Four Districts.

The Democrats last night nominated candidates for the House of Representatives in the six Congress districts of Kings County. All the conventions passed off smoothly, the nominations made having been practically agreed upon several days before. The following are the names of the candidates:

SECOND DISTRICT—George H. Lindsay.*

THIRD DISTRICT—Ephraim Byk.

FIFTH DISTRICT—John J. Roach.

SEVENTH DISTRICT—John J. Fitzgerald.*

*Renominated.

The renomination of "No-Pass" Baker, as he has come to be known since his somewhat sensational refusal of a pass from a railroad upon his entering Congress, caused much satisfaction among the radicals of the local Democracy, of which Mr. Baker is a leader. Mr. Baker's friends assert that he has made himself more felt in Washington than any Representative sent out from Brooklyn in recent years, and that he has earned a renomination. His district is Republican usually, but Mr. Baker is believed to have a good chance of re-election, because of factional differences among the Republicans.

Congressman Bassett declined a renomination in the Fifth District. John J. Roach, who has been named there, is a member of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, with offices at 38 Broad Street. He studied law in the office of Joseph H. Choate, United States Ambassador to England, and was at one time secretary to Randolph Guggenheimer.

Ephraim Byk, the nominee in the Third District, is a young lawyer. He ran for the Assembly in the Republican stronghold, the Seventeenth District, two years ago, and was defeated, although his two sisters aided him in carrying on a picturesque and hustling campaign.
