MESSAGE FROM THE CHIEF ELECTORAL OFFICER

All elections are historic, but British Columbia's 42nd Provincial General Election was unprecedented. It was our province's first election held during a pandemic, our first unscheduled election since 2001, and the first time more voters voted at advance voting and by mail than on General Voting Day. It was also the most challenging election that Elections BC has ever administered.

When we think about a typical election, we imagine voters gathered at rallies or campaign events, candidates knocking on doors and handing out leaflets, and election officials working in close-knit teams to set up school gyms, churches and community centres to serve voters across the province.

This election looked very different. B.C. was only the second Canadian jurisdiction to hold a provincial general election during the COVID-19 pandemic. Public health restrictions impacted every aspect of how political campaigns were run, how we administered the election, and how voters cast their ballot. Physical distancing requirements and capacity restrictions meant locating and leasing larger facilities for voting places and district electoral offices. Each facility required a COVID-19 safety plan to ensure safety for staff and voters, including hygiene protocols and use of personal protective equipment. Providing services to self-isolating voters meant offering alternatives to in-person voting on a large scale. Necessary health and safety protocols, the demands of an unscheduled election administered at short notice, and an unprecedented increase in mail-in voting all contributed to making this an election unlike any other in B.C.'s history.

For Elections BC, our past election cycle – the time between the 2017 Provincial General Election and this one – has been unprecedented in its own right. The 41st Provincial General Election, held in May 2017, was the closest in our province's history and resulted in B.C.'s first minority government in more than 60 years. This result meant that for the first time since fixed-date elections were established in 2001, Elections BC had to be ready to administer an on-demand provincial election at short notice.

We maintained this state of election readiness until the spring of 2020 and the onset of the global COVID-19 pandemic. At that time, after consultation with public health officials, it became apparent that election readiness would have to be re-planned to include safety measures necessary to meet the pandemic public health requirements. Our work thus quickly shifted to preparing for an election under this new reality. We researched worldwide best practices from those jurisdictions that held elections during the pandemic, and continued our consultation with the Provincial Health Officer, WorkSafeBC and other health agencies. With most staff working remotely, we assessed all aspects of election administration to determine what would be necessary to deliver an election safely in the pandemic. Key to this was planning an election model that spread voters evenly across all voting opportunities, reducing congestion and line-ups at in-person voting locations, and significantly increasing capacity for vote-by-mail. We also began purchasing personal protective equipment, established new safety criteria for voting places, updated public awareness messaging, and edited voting and training materials based on the new processes and procedures to keep voters, scrutineers and election officials safe.

The pandemic made election planning and preparation significantly more challenging. Developing and implementing a pandemic election model that maintained accessibility and integrity, while ensuring safety for voters, election workers and political participants, was unheard of before COVID-19. Major elements that were critical to our success included early and ongoing consultation with public health authorities and experts, our ability to vary from legislation in response to an emergency or extraordinary circumstances, and rapid access to necessary funding.

Within the context of a pandemic election and a rapidly changing environment with difficult to foresee risks, three primary challenges emerged:

- Providing accessible and safe voting opportunities to at-risk voters and communities, so that they were not administratively disenfranchised,
- Scaling capacity to meet significantly increased demand for voting by mail, and
- Maintaining safety and business continuity at Elections BC headquarters, district electoral offices, and voting places.

The issue of maintaining safety and business continuity across all work locations was a key challenge, particularly within the tight timelines established in legislation. We had to mitigate risks to staff and voters, and that of potentially having to close a district electoral office or voting place because of an outbreak. I am very grateful to be able to say that during the election period, Elections BC passed a number of WorkSafeBC safety audits, and there was no evidence of COVID-19 transmission at voting places or in electoral offices.

While many of the challenges we faced in 2020 were due to the unique circumstances of the pandemic, the lessons we learned can be carried forward to future elections. Because the Election Act does not anticipate holding an election during a pandemic, we had to vary from many processes defined in the Act to ensure physical distancing and reduce contact intensity. We accomplished this through Orders of the Chief Electoral Officer, which allow us to vary from legislated provisions in emergencies or extraordinary circumstances. Many of the variations reflected changes that were made in the Election Amendment Act, 2019, but which were not yet in force. British Columbia's next election, now scheduled for 2024, will be conducted under these new rules. A pandemic election provided the opportunity for us to "soft launch" many of the new provisions out of necessity, such as moving to a model of only one election official at each voting station.

The increase in voters voting by mail this election is also something we will need to consider for future elections. A record 596,287 voters voted by mail in 2020, a massive increase from the 6,517 voters who did so in 2017. As part of our post-election review, we will consider whether changes that were necessary for this election – detailed later in this report – should be used in future elections when there are no public health restrictions in place.

This election reaffirmed a core tenet of our mandate: we must be ready to administer an election when required. Our ongoing election readiness activities were essential to meeting this responsibility. Our planning and risk management framework was put to the test like never before in this election, and I am incredibly proud of how we rose to the occasion and delivered a safe and accessible election in the face of tremendous challenges.

An election is an expression of our democracy, in which we all play a role. Elections BC partnered with a number of service providers to administer this election, and I would like to acknowledge the hard work and efforts of the Office of the Chief Information Officer, Ace Courier, Forte Consulting, the CNIB Foundation, Distribution Centre Victoria, BC Mail Plus, Canada Post, Elevator Strategy, Fujitsu Consulting Canada, Mustel Group Market Research, Service BC and Queen's Printer. Our remarkable team of regional field officers, district electoral officers, deputy district electoral officers, and election officials in the field, from Fort Nelson to Victoria and everywhere in between, made the election happen on the ground and in the community. There would be no election without the political parties and their staff and volunteers who adapted to a very different election campaign, and the candidates who stepped up to run for office in unprecedented and challenging times. Finally, I would like to thank every voter for following safety protocols, for patiently listening to the instructions of our election officials, and for helping to maintain safe voting places and a safe election.

THE ROAD TO 2020

Elections BC must be ready to administer an election when required. Preparations for a provincial general election, in the form of preliminary budgeting, planning, and reviews, typically begin shortly after the previous election is over. Activities like ordering supplies and hiring and training district electoral officers begin in earnest 12-18 months before a scheduled election date. For this election cycle, however, that pace was accelerated due to the unique circumstances following the 2017 Provincial General Election.

The 41st Provincial General Election, held in May 2017, was the closest in B.C.'s history. No party had a majority of seats; indeed only 0.08% of the total valid votes province-wide and two seats separated the results for the top two parties. With a minority government, the greater likelihood of an unscheduled general election means that Elections BC must maintain a higher level of election readiness throughout the election cycle. For the first time since fixed-date elections were established in B.C. in 2001, Elections BC had to be prepared to administer an on-demand provincial election at short notice.

We worked to quickly achieve a state of election readiness following the 2017 election. Warehouses were stocked with election supplies and a full complement of 87 district electoral officers and 88 deputy district electoral officers were ready to run an election if called upon to do so. In the meantime, additional priorities required our attention. Legislative changes in late 2017 introduced significant new campaign financing rules and moved the fixed election date from the second Tuesday in May to the third Saturday in October every four years. Our systems, processes, documentation and materials were all updated to reflect these changes.

We kept busy in 2018, administering a provincial by-election in Kelowna West and producing a report on priority recommendations for legislative change, as well as administering the campaign financing and advertising rules for the 2018 General Local Elections. That fall, the 2018 Referendum on Electoral Reform was held by mail. The referendum asked voters to decide which voting system British Columbia should use for provincial elections. Elections BC administered all aspects of the referendum, including the development of an updated vote-by-mail system. Ultimately, voters chose to keep the province's First Past the Post voting system.

The work continued at a brisk pace in 2019, with a provincial by-election in Nanaimo in January. In November, the Legislative Assembly adopted our 2018 recommendations, resulting in historic changes to the Election Act. These changes established a List of Future Voters, expanded access to data sources to update the voters list, increased the length of the campaign period in unscheduled general elections, and, most significantly, allowed us to use new technologies to modernize how elections are administered in B.C. The new voting model, proposed by Elections BC in our 2018 recommendations report, will make voting faster and easier for voters, and meet the challenges presented by the changing nature of election work.

Maintaining a state of election readiness

Work to establish a state of election readiness began immediately following the 2017 provincial election. Elections BC completed a number of one-time activities to achieve this state, including:

- Creating "first five days" kits containing supplies needed by field staff to establish offices in each electoral district at short notice
- Procuring technology, including laptops, printers, phones and network supplies and voter lookup kits
- Procuring the majority of election materials, like signage, maps, screens, and ballot boxes, and sufficient generic stock so that date-specific materials could be produced at short-notice
- Securing additional warehouse space to accommodate storage of election materials and shipping supplies
- Preparing an updated public awareness campaign to launch quickly in all media outlets at short notice

Other preparations occurred on an ongoing basis. Employment terms of district electoral officers (DEOs) and their deputies from the 2017 election were extended. Normally these temporary positions end six months after General Voting Day, and resume in the lead-up to the next election. Due to the requirement to maintain an ongoing readiness state, DEOs and DDEOs were reappointed or recruited as necessary, and retained throughout the non-election period. DEOs and DDEOs were issued work tools including laptops and cell phones to complete regular readiness assignments such as office space and voting place suitability assessments. Maintaining this core of essential field staff was a key component of election readiness. DEOs and DDEOs have expert knowledge of their district and its unique challenges, and are responsible for securing voting places and district electoral offices, hiring and training district electoral office staff and election officials, overseeing voting and ballot counting, and reporting results. A well-prepared team of DEOs and DDEOs is essential to successfully delivering an election.

Establishing a framework to assess the likelihood of an unscheduled election call was another key to our preparedness planning. Elections BC's senior management regularly evaluated risk factors to determine whether there was a low, medium, or high probability of an unscheduled call. Risk factors included confidence votes in the Legislative Assembly, potential recall or resignation of a Member, or a provincial by-election. These scenarios were closely monitored to ensure we were prepared for an election at short notice. Certain readiness activities, such as distributing first five days kits to the field, would be triggered if the risk assessment was raised from low to high. By monitoring the risk of an election call, we were able to scale our readiness activities and make efficient use of time and resources.

Elections BC's preparations for the 42nd provincial election initially anticipated an election that would be run under the same rules and processes as the previous election. However, significant legislative changes, beginning in the fall of 2017, meant that election plans were continuously updated to align with new rules and regulations as they were brought into force.

Legislative changes

Elections BC conducts provincial elections in accordance with the Election Act and Constitution Act. In November 2017 substantial changes to the Election Act were made. These changes were implemented for the first time in a general election in 2020. Our systems, processes, documentation and materials were all updated to reflect these changes.

Among other provisions, the amendments:

- Changed the dates for advance voting to six consecutive days starting eight days before General Voting Day
- Moved the fixed election date from the second Tuesday in May to the third Saturday in October every four years
- Banned political contributions from organizations
- Restricted political and sponsorship contributions to eligible individuals (B.C. residents who are Canadian citizens or permanent residents)
- Limited contributions from eligible individuals to $1,200 per year to any one political party (including its constituency associations, candidates and nomination contestants) or third party advertising sponsor
- Established election expense reimbursements for qualified parties and candidates
- Introduced new restrictions for fundraising functions
- Established more frequent reporting requirements
- Reduced election expense limits for candidates to $58,000 in all electoral districts, and for political parties to a formula based on the number of registered voters in all districts[3]
- Introduced annual allowances for eligible political parties

3 The expense limits for candidates, political parties and third party sponsors were adjusted for the 2020 Provincial General Election to account for the extra days in the campaign period (34 instead of the usual 29 for a fixed-date election), as well as changes in the consumer price index.

- Established a 60 day pre-campaign period for fixed date general elections for the purpose of regulating election advertising
- Updated the definition of election advertising to include commercial canvassing activities
- Established administrative monetary penalties for contraventions of certain provisions of the Election Act

Additional legislative changes were introduced and passed by the Legislative Assembly in November 2019. The Election Amendment Act, 2019 provided the legislative framework for greater use of technology to administer voting, including using electronic tabulators to count paper ballots, and laptops to look up voters and cross them off the voters list in real time. The changes did not include the use of online voting or electronic voting machines.

When the Election Amendment Act, 2019 was passed, key sections allowing for greater use of technology in voting administration did not come into force immediately. The original plan was to have these "voting modernization" changes in place for the fixed-date election formerly scheduled for October of 2021. When the election was called in September 2020, voting modernization work was put on hold and will resume once close-out activities for the 2020 provincial election are complete.

Other provisions of the Election Amendment Act, 2019 included establishing a List of Future Voters, access to additional data sources to update the voters list, new reporting requirements for nomination contests, and increasing the length of the campaign period in unscheduled general elections. The latter provision applied to the 2020 Provincial General Election, resulting in a 34-day campaign period (rather than 29 days for a scheduled election).

Preparing for a pandemic election

Elections BC maintained a state of election readiness while working to implement legislative changes and process improvements until the spring of 2020. At that point it seemed likely that B.C.'s 42nd provincial election, whether held as scheduled in 2021 or earlier, would take place during the COVID-19 pandemic and under some stage of public health restrictions. Holding a safe election during the pandemic has been a topic of concern for election agencies around the world. Elections BC conducted research and closely followed developments around the globe in other jurisdictions that held pandemic elections, and consulted with other election agencies across Canada.

Beginning in April 2020, Elections BC reached out to the Office of the Provincial Health Officer for guidance on how public health requirements and COVID-19 preventive measures would impact electoral processes. Significantly, the Office of the Provincial Health Officer provided clarification that the public health order in place at that time restricting gatherings and events to no more than 50 persons did not apply to voting places. Voting places were therefore able to admit more than 50 people (including election officials, candidate representatives and voters) at any one time, provided that physical distancing requirements could still be met and the fire code occupancy limit was not exceeded. This greatly reduced the potential for long lineups outside voting places and helped us secure large spaces as voting locations to accommodate higher occupancy limits and ensure physical distancing.

An Elections BC team member preparing election supplies

Elections BC worked with the Office of the Provincial Health Officer, WorkSafeBC, and regional health authorities to develop safe voting place and district electoral office plans and ensure the voting process was safe and accessible for all British Columbians. We also hosted a discussion with the Election Advisory Committee and Provincial Health Officer to discuss issues associated with political campaigning during the pandemic, and developed guidelines for parties and candidates on campaigning safely.

As planning for a pandemic election progressed, three challenges emerged:

- Providing safe and accessible voting opportunities for at-risk voters and communities, so that they were not administratively disenfranchised,
- Maintaining safety at Elections BC headquarters, district electoral offices, and voting places, and
- Scaling capacity to meet the anticipated demand for voting by mail

During our planning it became apparent that with effective safety plans in place, the vast majority of British Columbians would be able to vote safely. It was equally apparent, however, that at-risk or self-isolating voters, voters who wished to reduce their own risk and that of others, voters in care homes, and voters in specific communities (such as First Nations communities) would face significantly greater barriers to participation. We developed tailored voting options and focused on communication and outreach to reduce barriers as much as possible. Administrative flexibility was also critical to respond quickly to changing circumstances and new outbreaks.

The issue of maintaining safety in voting places and district electoral offices was a key challenge, particularly within the tight timelines of a campaign period. Mitigating risks to election officials and voters had to be balanced with the risk of having to close a district electoral office or voting place because of an exposure event. District electoral officers reviewed the locations identified for voting places in their district against a number of safety criteria including occupancy limits and physical space. A customized safety plan was developed for each office and voting place.

At the same time, we re-engineered voting processes, updated training and reference materials, and purchased new supplies. Previous elections have been "high touch" events in which millions of British Columbians participated. If we had not put pandemic adaptations in place, the 2020 election would have been a high risk event in a pandemic environment. Preventative measures were required to hold the election safely. Such measures considered safe practices for voters, election workers, and political participants, while maintaining accessibility to the ballot and the integrity of the electoral process. We added physical distancing and pandemic protocols to training materials for election officials, purchased personal protective equipment for staff based on their role, purchased large volumes of hand sanitizer for voting places, planned for enhanced cleaning in voting places, and purchased transparent acrylic barriers to be placed on tables between voters and election officials.

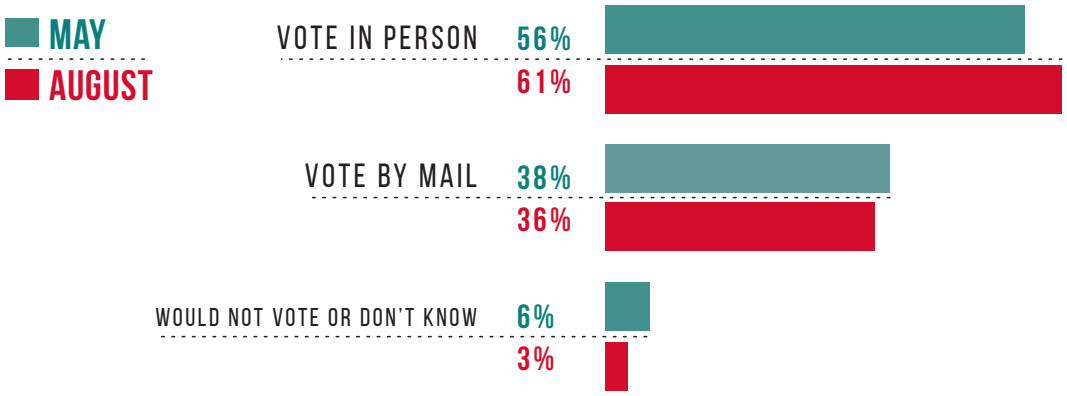
Scaling capacity to support major increases in vote-by-mail was identified early as a critical issue. Surveys were conducted by Elections BC in May and August of 2020 to better understand voter concerns and interests. The surveys indicated that approximately 37% of British Columbians would prefer to vote by mail if an election was held during the pandemic. The estimated demand for vote-by-mail represented as many as 800,000 voters choosing this option. In comparison, around 11,000 voters requested vote-by-mail packages in the previous provincial election in 2017.

Figure 2: Intended voting methods of voters surveyed in May and August 2020



In order to accommodate the anticipated demand, Elections BC redesigned the vote-by-mail processes used in provincial elections to allow high volumes of vote-by-mail packages to be requested, assembled, distributed, received, and processed. The package assembly process and vote-by-mail package design were modelled after those used in the 2018 referendum, which was conducted entirely by mail. The survey results were accurate and our preparations were warranted, as during the election we fulfilled almost 725,000 requests for vote-by-mail packages, an increase of approximately 6,300% from the last provincial election in B.C. in 2017. The tremendous challenge presented by the scale of this demand was met by exceptional effort from Elections BC staff and partners across the province.

Elections BC identified the following pandemic preparations as readiness priorities, in part due to their long lead-time, and worked to accomplish these tasks throughout the spring and summer of 2020:

1. Procuring personal protection equipment and sanitation supplies.
2. Procuring plexiglass barriers for district electoral offices and voting places.
3. Preparing for increased vote-by-mail demand by procuring envelopes and redesigning processes.
4. Preparing an updated public awareness campaign that included “vote safely” and other pandemic messaging.

5. Preparing training and reference materials that described how to implement the pandemic safety measures.
6. Contacting administrators of site-based voting areas (such as hospitals) and other special voting target areas to discuss options for administering remote voting.
7. Adjusting headquarters staffing plans to allow for physical distancing and increased capacity.
8. Identifying where pandemic adaptations to voting procedures required Orders of the Chief Electoral Officer to vary from legislated provisions.

Entering a high readiness state

In July of 2020, Elections BC's readiness planning for an unscheduled election went from a low potential risk to a high risk. This shift in readiness was implemented due to significant media speculation about a potential unscheduled election in the fall. Election preparations kicked into high gear and took on a new sense of urgency, particularly preparations related to the long-lead time readiness tasks outlined above.

We conducted a virtual training workshop for newly-appointed district electoral officers (DEOs) and deputy district electoral officers (DDEOs), including hands-on activities delivered to their homes. All DEOs and DDEOs received presentations on administering an election in a pandemic including virtual Q&A sessions by region.

Elements of the redesigned vote-by-mail package that could be procured in advance, such as envelopes and write-in ballots, were ordered and stored in case an election was called. Similar preparations were made for producing Where to Vote cards, voter's guides, advertising and other materials that were dependent on determining the election date.

Preparations for a potential fall election were also underway throughout the province in each electoral district. DEOs identified voting places and established office locations, completed staffing plans, and reviewed current pandemic-related challenges and risks specific to their community.

Elections BC realized that public health measures and our safety plans could not be implemented if all of the normal Election Act procedures were followed. Some of the pandemic adaptations to voting procedures required variance from procedures established in the Election Act. These variances were implemented through Orders of the Chief Electoral Officer under section 280 of the Election Act. This section gives the Chief Electoral Officer the power to issue Orders to vary from the Act in emergencies or extraordinary circumstances. Typically, Orders are reactive, responding to issues that arise during an election. For the first time in British Columbia, Orders were prepared proactively to address a potential provincial election held during a state of emergency. The Orders were ready to be issued immediately following an election call during the pandemic. A summary of all Orders in relation to the election is included in this report.

The election call

On September 21, 2020, British Columbia's Premier formally requested that the Lieutenant Governor dissolve the Legislative Assembly to trigger an election. Following the dissolution of the Legislative Assembly, the Chief Electoral Officer issued 87 writs of election, one for each electoral district.

A writ is a formal proclamation of an election, stating the date of General Voting Day as well as the close of candidate nominations. Writs must be signed by the Chief Electoral Officer and the Attorney General and witnessed by the Lieutenant Governor. The writs were signed on September 21, officially beginning British Columbia's 42nd Provincial General Election.

Voter registration

In the lead-up to a scheduled provincial election, Elections BC conducts an enumeration to update the provincial voters list. While we maintain a high-quality voters list on an ongoing basis, voters moving, name changes, and other information updates impact the accuracy and currency of the list. An accurate list is essential for an inclusive, accessible and fair general election. The voters list also helps candidates and political parties contact voters.

Voters can register when they vote in B.C., but there are several benefits to being registered in advance. During the election registered voters received a personalized Where to Vote card telling them where and when they could vote. The card could be used as one of two pieces of acceptable ID, and helped election officials administer voting efficiently. Being registered in advance also made the vote-by-mail process easier, as pre-registered voters did not need to submit identification with their vote-by-mail package. Voters whose registration was not current were required in some cases to provide photocopies of acceptable identification in their returned voting package, a process that some found difficult.

We were not able to conduct a full enumeration prior to the on-demand 2020 election, but we still undertook enumeration activities to ensure the voters list was as current as possible. In July of 2020, Elections BC raised its assessment of the risk of a possible unscheduled election to high. At that point, additional resources were devoted to a "data enumeration", which involved expedited processing of voter registration information from secondary data sources, such as Elections Canada's National Register of Electors. This resulted in close to 350,000 registration transactions, including 79,595 new registrations and 182,883 updates to existing voter records.

After the writs of election were issued on September 21, the voters list remained open to receive registrations up to midnight on September 26. During this six-day period, voters initiated 408,765 registration transactions, the vast majority of which came through the online voter registration system (OVR). When voters requested a vote-by-mail package through that system, the activity was counted as a registration transaction even if the voter did not change any of their registration information. Of the 408,765 transactions during the first six days of the election period, 93% were associated with requests for vote-by-mail packages.

At the close of general voter registration, there were 3,486,398 registered voters on the Provincial Voters List. 38,414 voters registered when they voted, and 183,129 voters updated their information when they voted. At the close of voting on General Voting Day, there were 3,524,812 registered voters on the voters list.

Voting in person

Previous elections in B.C. have been primarily in-person events. The vast majority of voters (90% in 2017) chose to vote in person, either at advance voting or on General Voting Day. With the concerns of the pandemic top of mind, Elections BC developed a suite of adaptations to voting procedures to ensure voting in-person could happen safely and in compliance with provincial health guidance. Our approach was based on a framework of physical distancing, engineering controls, administrative controls and personal protective equipment. We used this framework to assess voting processes and identify how we could reduce the risk of COVID-19 transmission.

Elections are typically “high touch” events in which millions of British Columbians participate. Without the pandemic adaptations developed throughout the spring and summer of 2020, the election would have posed a risk to public health. Preventative measures were needed to hold an election safely. The measures we developed for voting places considered safe practices for voters, election workers, and political participants in the process, like candidates and scrutineers. The adaptations also maintained accessibility to the ballot without compromising the integrity of the electoral process.

At a high level, safety protocols in voting places included:

- Physical distancing
- Capacity limits based on the square footage of the voting place
- Election officials wearing personal protective equipment (such as masks and face-visors)
- Protective barriers
- Hand sanitizing stations
- Frequent cleaning of voting stations and frequently touched surfaces

Voting places followed the practices outlined in our voting place safety plan which was prepared with input from WorkSafeBC.

Some familiar voting procedures looked different. For example, voters made an oral declaration of their eligibility to vote instead of signing a voting book. Voters, rather than an election official, removed and discarded the counterfoil from their ballot and inserted the ballot into the ballot box. To reduce inter-person contact, there was only one election official per voting station, instead of the usual two. The number of candidate representatives (or scrutineers) permitted to observe voting was limited by voting place capacity limits and physical distancing requirements.

We asked voters to do their part to keep voting places safe as well. Voters who were self-isolating, or who had COVID-like symptoms were asked not to attend an in-person voting opportunity, but instead contact Elections BC to obtain a vote-by-mail package. While the Ministerial Order mandating the wearing of masks in indoor public places was not yet in force at the time of the election, we encouraged voters to wear a mask when they voted to help protect others. Voters were not asked to remove their mask to vote. Voters were also asked to sanitize their hands before and after voting, and could bring their own pen or pencil with them to mark their ballot if they wished. All voters had the option of voting in person or by mail.

A key element of our voting place safety plans were capacity limits to ensure physical distancing. While the 50-person limit outlined in the Provincial Health Officer's Gathering and Events Order did not apply to voting places, capacity limits were based on the square footage of the space. Having capacity limits based on square footage allowed us to maintain physical distancing, while also ensuring that voters moved through the voting place quickly. In order to accommodate greater numbers of voters safely, it was essential to secure large spaces to use as voting places. Schools make excellent voting places because they are well known to the public and have large gymnasiums that are generally accessible to all voters. In many areas these were the only available spaces that met the requirements to be used as voting places.

Elections BC worked with the Office of the Provincial Health Officer and the Ministry of Education to ensure that our preparations were consistent with plans to maintain schools as safe spaces for staff and students. Historically, schools have been one of the most frequently used voting places for both advance voting and on General Voting Day. For 2020, voting places located in schools were only open on days that school was not in session. Because the advance voting period included two weekend days, and General Voting Day fell on a Saturday, access to these essential voting places was not significantly reduced. In some cases, district electoral officers sought and secured alternative facilities that have not been used as voting places in the past, including BC Place stadium. Some DEOs had to look for additional voting places due to facility closures or voting place capacity limits, while others had to deal with voting places that had pandemic protocols in place that were not mandated by the Public Health Officer.

Voters had a number of opportunities to vote in person. Voters could vote during seven days of advance voting or on General Voting Day. Voters could also vote at any district electoral office until 4 p.m. on General Voting Day.

Election officials

Elections BC hired 17,905 election officials to serve voters in voting places. This was fewer than the 23,369 election officials hired in 2017 because of modifications to voting procedures. Rather than a team of two election officials, only one election official served voters at each voting station. Election officials worked at 341 advance voting places and 1,253 general voting places (in 2017 there were 347 advance voting places and 1,317 general voting places).

Election official training used a blended learning approach. Election officials completed an online training course that provided background and context about the election and the election official's role in the voting place. Online learning also prepared election officials for what to expect in the physically distanced in-person classroom training that followed. The online course and classroom training were expanded to include information about pandemic safety protocols. Classroom training allowed election officials the opportunity to practice their assigned tasks and familiarize themselves with voting and reference materials in preparation for their role.

DEO offices

All voters in B.C. can vote at any district electoral office in the province throughout the campaign period. Eighty-eight district electoral offices opened to the public within the first week of the election and administered voting in person until 4 p.m. on General Voting Day (there was one office for each district, plus an additional "satellite" office in Sechelt for the Powell River-Sunshine Coast electoral district). Voting in a district electoral office was a good option for voters who wished to vote in person but were unable to attend an advance or general voting opportunity.

25,299 votes were cast in district electoral offices, a slight decrease from 2017.

Advance voting

Advance voting opportunities were available from Thursday, October 15 to Wednesday, October 21, from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. local time. There were seven days of advance voting, up from six in 2017. The additional advance voting day was added by an Order of the Chief Electoral Officer as part of our pandemic safety plans, to give voters more options and help reduce numbers in voting places. The advance voting period included two weekend days, Saturday, October 17, and Sunday, October 18.

Not all advance voting places were open on every day of the advance voting period, but at least one advance voting place was open in each electoral district on every advance voting day. Advance voting locations and the dates they were open were available on the Elections BC website in a variety of formats (including the Where to Vote application), advertised province-wide and printed on Where to Vote cards.

The proportion of voters who cast their ballot at advance voting has steadily increased over the past several elections, from 6.9% of voters in the 2001 provincial election to 35.4% in 2020. Turnout at advance voting reached record levels in 2020. For the first time in a provincial election, more voters voted at advance voting than on General Voting Day.

As in previous elections, the first and last days of the advance voting period were the most popular. However, turnout remained high for all seven days of advance voting.

General voting

On General Voting Day, Saturday, October 24, voting places were open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Pacific time. General Voting Day on a Saturday was new for this election. In the past, General Voting Day has been on a Tuesday. Voters were assigned a general voting place according to the voting area in which they reside. However, as part of B.C.'s accessible electoral process, all eligible voters could vote at any voting place in the province under absentee voting rules. It is usually faster and easier for voters to vote at their assigned voting place, but voters can choose to vote at another voting place if they wish.

Typically, the majority of votes cast in a provincial election are cast on General Voting Day by voters voting at their assigned general voting place. This pattern was dramatically different in 2020, with only 28.8% of votes cast on General Voting Day at the voter's assigned voting place. This change in voter behaviour is largely attributable to the massive increase in voting by mail.

Voting by mail

The 2020 Provincial General Election saw a major increase in the number of voters choosing to vote by mail. While voting by mail has been an option available to voters in B.C. for more than 30 years, historically the use of this voting option has been comparatively low – typically less than 1% of votes cast in a provincial election have been cast by mail, usually by voters who were away from the province during an election.

Informed by the pandemic election experience of other jurisdictions where vote-by-mail saw significant increases, and the results of polling conducted in the spring and summer of 2020, we estimated that 35% of all voters would choose to vote by mail. This assessment proved largely accurate. An unprecedented 596,287 voters voted by mail in 2020, a remarkable increase from the 6,517 who had voted by mail in the 2017 provincial election.

Meeting the demand for voting by mail on this scale involved a major procurement project in partnership with Queen's Printer, B.C. Mail Plus and others, and a major public communications effort. The shift to voting by mail and assisted telephone voting (discussed later in this report) allowed us to serve voters remotely and reduced the numbers of voters voting in person, which supported physical distancing and safety protocols in voting places.

Voter Surveys

Early in the process of planning for a pandemic election, Elections BC began to conduct research into the increased use of vote by mail in other jurisdictions. Just as the pandemic has impacted most of our daily behaviours, we recognized that it was likely to change how voters exercised their right to vote. Elections BC contracted Mustel Group Market Research to survey British Columbians to gauge their attitudes towards voting in a provincial election during a pandemic. The research was designed to measure voters' level of comfort with a variety of election scenarios, including voting in person with protective measures, and voting by mail. Province-wide surveys were conducted in May and August of 2020.

While the majority of survey respondents indicated that they would vote in person at a voting place if protective measures were in place, approximately 37% of respondents indicated they would prefer to vote by mail. Around two thirds of respondents indicated that they would be very comfortable voting by mail. In comparison, just half of respondents indicated they would be very comfortable voting in person with safety measures in place.

Based on these responses and our consultations with other jurisdictions, Elections BC moved forward in its preparations with the assumption that as many as 800,000 voters could choose to vote by mail.

Package design and procurement

The vote-by-mail package used in the election differed significantly from the package used in previous provincial elections, in order to accommodate the high volumes anticipated. Previously, vote-by-mail packages were manually assembled and shipped out from Elections BC headquarters and district electoral offices. This was feasible for the relatively low numbers of requests for vote-by-mail packages seen in previous elections. However, it quickly became apparent that this approach would not meet the anticipated demand. Drawing on our experience administering a mail-based provincial referendum in 2018, Elections BC materially redesigned the vote-by-mail package so that package assembly and distribution could be largely automated.

Vote-by-mail package contents

The package included an ordinary or write-in ballot, secrecy sleeve, certification envelope, postage-paid return envelope, and instruction sheet. Voters who were required to register or update their voter information in conjunction with voting by mail also received information about the requirement to provide photocopies of valid voter identification. Each piece was designed so that it could be machine-inserted and would "nest" correctly within the package so that the voter's address appeared in the outer envelope window.

Each vote-by-mail package was customized to the voter. The certification envelope included the voter's name, residential address, electoral district, and the first two digits of their birth year. The voter's birthdate acted as a "shared secret" that Elections BC used to confirm the voter's identity.

Due to the long lead times, high volumes, custom envelope sizes, and specific paper stock required, vote-by-mail package design and procurement began in the summer of 2020. Based on the anticipated demand for mail-in voting during a pandemic election, Elections BC planned to produce at least 800,000 vote-by-mail packages and procured sufficient materials to cover any overages.

Before candidate nominations closed on October 2 write-in ballots were included in vote-by-mail packages. Ordinary ballots that showed the candidate names and party affiliations could not be produced as the list of candidates was not yet finalized. Voters who received a write-in ballot were advised to write the name of a candidate running in their district, or political party that endorsed a candidate in that district. Elections BC provided the current list of candidates on our website as well as instructions on how to properly complete the write-in ballot. Voters could also call the Elections BC contact centre for an up-to-date list of candidates in their district. Vote-by-mail packages produced after nominations closed included an ordinary ballot listing the candidates in the voter's electoral district. Approximately 494,000 of the vote-by-mail packages distributed included write-in ballots. The remaining packages included ordinary ballots.

It appears that voters found the instructions on how to complete their package clear, as only 1.1%[4] of mail-in ballots were rejected, comparable with the 1.3% rejection rate of ordinary ballots issued at in-person absentee voting opportunities.

Requesting a package

All voters in B.C. were eligible to vote by mail for the 2020 provincial election. Voters who wished to vote by mail had to request a package from Elections BC. Voters could request a voting package online, by phone, or in person at a district electoral office. Package requests online and by phone were closed one week before General Voting Day, on October 17, to allow for enough time for packages to be delivered to voters before the close of voting.

Approximately 90% of all requests were received online through Elections BC's voting package request system. A further 9% were requested by phone, and a small amount of packages were requested and distributed in-person at district electoral offices. Elections BC also distributed some packages via targeted outreach to special voting areas and remote locations.

A high number of voting package requests were received in the first six days of the election. There was another increase in demand following the close of candidate nominations and the delivery of the Voter's Guide, which was mailed to all residential addresses in the province.

Issuing packages

Mailing lists were generated each day as requests for vote-by-mail packages were received online and by phone. BC Mail Plus used these daily mailing lists to produce and distribute vote-by-mail packages.

There were initial challenges processing the high volume of package requests and turning those requests into mailing lists.

Package production also became more complex at two stages:

- Requests received after the close of voter registration on September 26 required an extra piece to be inserted in a package if the voter was required to include identification in their package to complete the registration process.
- Requests received after the close of candidate nominations on October 2 received an ordinary ballot instead of a write-in ballot. Because ordinary ballots were different for each electoral district, production of packages had to shift to a small batch process. It was therefore difficult to achieve the same efficiency of scale in package production when write-in ballots were used.

These challenges led to occasional backlogs in package production. The backlog was cleared by the final week of production (October 11 through 18).

Receiving and screening packages

Of the 604,111 vote-by-mail packages returned to Elections BC by the close of voting, approximately 505,000 were returned by mail. Voters could also return their packages in person at participating Service BC locations, district electoral offices, or voting places. Returning a voting package to a voting place was new for this election, recognizing the large number of voters voting by mail. It was also another in-person drop-off option for voters who had waited until late in the campaign period to return their package, at which point it was too late to return a package to Elections BC by mail and have it arrive in time to be counted. Packages returned by mail or at a Service BC office were received centrally at Elections BC's sorting facility. The remaining approximately 100,000 packages were returned in person at district electoral offices or voting places.

Under the Election Act, mail-in ballots are counted in the electoral district where the voter lives. Vote-by-mail packages returned by mail, or returned in person in another electoral district, were removed from the outer return envelope and sorted by the electoral district printed on the certification envelope, then sent to their home district electoral office to await final count. Packages with copies of voter identification enclosed (for voters who had to register or update their voter information) were opened, checked, and resealed so that the enclosed documents were kept securely with the package.

Returned packages were distributed to district electoral offices as they were received. Some initial screening of these packages began before the close of voting, including checking that the "shared secret" (voter's birthdate) matched the voter's registration record and that the certification envelope had been completed in full. Because we have a "vote anywhere" model in B.C., all voters can cast their ballot at any voting place in the province. Mail-in and other absentee ballots undergo several screening checks before being accepted for counting to ensure election integrity. This screening cannot be completed until after General Voting Day to ensure that a voter who has voted at advance or general voting cannot also vote by mail or absentee. More information about the integrity checks conducted for mail-in ballots during the receiving process is included in Section 4 of this report.

Public awareness and information

There was significant public interest in the historically high levels of mail-in voting for this election. The election also coincided with a period of heavy demand on Canada Post. Since the beginning of the pandemic, Canada Post had experienced a surge in parcel deliveries. The fall election also coincided with the beginning of the busy holiday shipping season. Some voters expressed concern that they had requested a vote-by-mail package but not yet received it, and that high volumes at Canada Post may be causing delays. Delays between when a package was requested and when the voter received it were primarily due to the high volume of package requests seen at the beginning of the campaign period. Package requests online and by phone were closed one week before General Voting Day, on October 17, to allow for enough time for packages to be delivered to voters before the close of voting.

Some voters also expressed concern about the deadline to return vote-by-mail packages. The Election Act requires packages to be received by Elections BC before the close of voting on General Voting Day in order to be considered for counting. This means that voters must mail their package well before the deadline, or return it in person. Elections BC received multiple requests for clarification on this topic. Our public messaging strongly encouraged voters to mail their package at least a week before the deadline, or use in-person drop-off locations in the final days of the campaign. We partnered closely with Canada Post to monitor the mail stream and determine if an Order would be necessary to extend the deadline. It was clear based on our research that an extension was not necessary, as in the last week of the campaign very few vote-by-mail packages were received by mail. The majority were returned in person.

To keep the public informed, we also published daily updates on the Elections BC website of the estimated number of vote-by-mail packages requested by electoral district, and as package returns began, the estimated total number of returned packages province-wide. More information about vote-by-mail turnout and results is available in Section 4 of this report.

Telephone voting

Assisted telephone voting was first piloted in the 2017 Provincial General Election. This voting option was available to a limited number of voters living with vision loss or a permanent disability that prevented them from voting independently at another voting opportunity. For the 2020 election, this option was significantly expanded due to the pandemic and the unscheduled election call. The option was made available to all voters living in care facilities and to patients in acute care hospitals experiencing an outbreak. In other cases, voters from a First Nations community that had instituted community quarantine measures, voters who were self-isolating during the last week of the campaign period and Canadian Forces members deployed overseas were able to vote remotely using assisted telephone voting. This option proved invaluable in providing the flexibility to deal with the unique and challenging circumstances of a pandemic election.

Ensuring that voters who voted by telephone experienced the same right to privacy and secrecy as any other voter was an important consideration. This voting opportunity had to find the right balance between ensuring election integrity and access to the ballot. The telephone voting process was developed to ensure the provisions of the Election Act were met while providing an accessible voting opportunity.

Voters in long-term and acute care facilities experiencing an outbreak were sent information cards with a contact phone number, the name and address of their facility, and instructions to make sure they had appropriate ID available. Deployed military members were provided the same information through a designated contact person. Voters with a disability or vision loss, or who were self-isolating in the last week of the campaign period, were instructed to call Elections BC's contact centre to initiate the telephone voting process.

We increased our capacity to administer telephone voting in anticipation of higher volumes because it is labour and resource intensive. Elections BC took several steps to ensure that demand for telephone voting did not outstrip capacity.

These steps included:

- Notifying eligible groups as early as possible and encouraging these voters to vote as soon as possible to avoid wait times.
- Targeting information about this voting option directly to eligible groups.
- Clearly identifying and enforcing eligibility requirements.
- Clearly communicating the capacity constraints of this voting option and its intended purpose to the public, candidates, political parties and other stakeholders.
- Promoting voting by mail as an accessible remote voting option for all voters.
- Emphasizing safety measures in place at in-person voting opportunities.

Telephone voting was available from October 5 to October 24. To meet the expanded eligibility criteria and anticipated call volumes, Elections BC's capacity for providing assisted telephone voting was also expanded. With 24 teams of two operators, we had the capacity to serve up to 2,500 voters per day. Throughout the campaign period, telephone voting volumes averaged 60-70 per day, with increases during advance voting and on General Voting Day. The telephone voting operator teams were fully cross-trained as contact centre operators and handled general inquiries when they were not busy administering telephone voting.

In total, 3,463 voters cast their vote using assisted telephone voting in 2020, up from 1,062 in 2017, representing an increase of 226%.

Informing and engaging voters

Elections BC runs a public awareness campaign every election to make sure voters know where, when, and how to vote. For our 2020 campaign, we also included messaging about how to vote safely and that all voters could vote by mail.

Our ads included information about what voters could do to support safe voting, and the pandemic protocols in place at every voting place. Our goal was to assure voters that effective safety measures were in place and to let them know what to expect if they voted in person. While voting places in 2020 looked very different than in the past, our safety messaging was helped by the fact that voters were generally familiar with pandemic response measures by the time the election was called. These measures included things that had become part of everyday life, like physical distancing, hand sanitizing stations, plexiglass barriers, and officials wearing personal protective equipment.

A second message unique to the 2020 campaign was that all voters could vote by mail: this was not just an option for voters who would be away during the election. This message served two purposes: to make sure that voters who were uncomfortable voting in person knew what their options were, and to support our operations. We encouraged voters to request their vote-by-mail package early to give us more time to assemble the voter's package and mail it to them. This also gave the voter more time to complete the package and return it to us.

Encouraging voters to request a vote-by-mail package early was a focus of our campaign in the week immediately after the election call. As the campaign progressed, messaging shifted to focus on voting in-person at advance voting or on General Voting Day and how to return your vote-by-mail package before the deadline. We tried to keep our messaging as agile as possible to respond to voter concerns and new developments during the campaign. For example, we released ads on how to complete a write-in ballot in response to voter questions on this topic.

Campaign development began in the summer of 2020 when our readiness level increased. This lead-time was necessary to ensure a province-wide campaign could be launched on short notice, which would not have been possible if we had waited until after the election was called to start developing the campaign. A ready-to-launch campaign was especially important to ensure a safe process, and to encourage voters to request their vote-by-mail package as soon as possible after the election call.

The "I Vote" theme used in the 2017 election was carried forward to the 2020 campaign. Ads were run in both traditional media and online. Traditional media ads included two statutory, province-wide newspaper ads as required by the Election Act.

Website and social media

Website traffic during the campaign period increased substantially in 2020, following the trend over the past several elections. Most visits to the website were from mobile devices. Notably there were fewer visits to the website on General Voting Day than in 2017, likely because of the increase in voting by mail and at advance voting.

Table 4: Website traffic to the Elections BC website

	2013	2017	2020
Website visits during the campaign period	435,335	943,991	1,981,852
Website visits on General Voting Day	65,325	205,147	137,097
Percentage of visits from mobile devices	20%	43%	50%

The website included new resources to help voters vote by mail. These included an animated video on how to complete your voting package, a page on how to mark your write-in ballot, and a list of candidates that voters could filter by electoral district. The list of candidates was especially useful for voters using a write-in ballot when voting by mail.

We were active on social media throughout the campaign, publishing content (including paid social ads) and responding to questions from voters. We were active on Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram, and also posted several videos to our YouTube channel.

Where to vote cards

Sending a "Where to Vote" card (WTV card) to every registered voter in the province was an essential part of our communications strategy. The cards were distributed between October 10 and 18, so that every registered voter received a card before the start of advance voting.

The format of the cards was similar to the cards used in the 2018 Kelowna West and 2019 Nanaimo by-elections. They included a colour strip that election officials could use to identify a voter's electoral district. The listing of advance voting places was updated to show the additional day of advance voting.

The production process for the cards differed from past elections because of the unscheduled election call. WTV cards are printed in two steps. The shells are printed first, and voter specific information (including their assigned voting place and other voting opportunities in their district) is printed second, once that information is available. In the past, the election date was part of the pre-printed card shell, because it was known in advance. As part of our readiness activities in the summer of 2020, we updated the card design so that the pre-printed shells did not include election-specific information, like the event date. This allowed us to print the shells ahead of time and then print the voter and voting place data as soon as possible after general voter registration closed on September 26. This approach was essential to meet production timelines and ensure that every registered voter received a card before advance voting started.

Voter's guide

Another critical piece of our communications strategy was the Voter's Guide. The guide was sent to every address in the province between October 5 and 13. A voter's guide was not sent to every address in 2017, but that was a scheduled election in which public awareness could build leading up to the scheduled date. Given the unscheduled election call, it was important to send a guide to every address to ensure that all British Columbians had timely information about how to participate in the election safely. The guide included information about in-person voting options, how to vote by mail, pandemic protocols and protective measures for COVID-19, and services for at-risk voters and voters with disabilities.

Media relations

We held two press conferences during the election: one immediately after the election call, and one immediately before General Voting Day. Chief Electoral Officer Anton Boegman and Provincial Health Officer Dr. Bonnie Henry spoke at the first press conference, which focused on pandemic response measures and voting opportunities. The Chief Electoral Officer spoke at the second press conference, which focused on how results would be reported and what would happen after General Voting Day. Given the extremely large number of mail-in ballots, it was possible that the result of the election would not be known until the conclusion of final count. As a result, the second press conference was intended to ensure that media understood how the process would work, and what the implications would be if there wasn't a clear result on election night.

We also issued nine media advisories and six news releases throughout the election period, and responded to many inquiries and interview requests from the media.

Two notable media issues arose during the campaign: an investigation into allegations of corrupt voting in the Surrey-Fleetwood electoral district, and the withdrawal of a party's endorsement after the close of candidate nominations.

Investigation into corrupt voting in Surrey-Fleetwood

On September 29, 2020, legal counsel representing the BC NDP requested an investigation into potential violations of section 257 of the Election Act. The request expressed concerns that the campaign of BC Liberal candidate Garry Thind was possibly gathering personal information to illegally request vote-by-mail packages. This request became public on September 29.

Provincial Health Officer Dr. Bonnie Henry and Chief Electoral Officer Anton Boegman briefing media on pandemic response measures and voting opportunities.

The Election Act requires voters to request a vote-by-mail package on their own. It is an offence to obtain a ballot on behalf of another voter.

Elections BC's investigation began on September 29 and concluded on October 3. It included interviewing all identified parties, reviewing material obtained from all parties, and analyzing vote-by-mail package request data. No evidence of improper vote-by-mail package requests was found.

On October 3 we notified all parties involved that the investigation found no evidence of corrupt voting, and that the investigation file had been closed. Given the public interest in this story we also issued a news release on October 3 confirming the results of our investigation.

Withdrawal of party endorsement after the close of candidate nominations

On October 15, 2020, Chilliwack-Kent candidate Laurie Throness announced that he was resigning from the BC Liberal Party. Elections BC fielded many media inquiries around how a resignation at this stage of the election would effect the voting process.

The Election Act establishes deadlines for a party to withdraw their endorsement of a candidate, and for a candidate to withdraw. For the 2020 election, the deadline for a party to withdraw their endorsement of a candidate was the close of candidate nominations on October 2. The deadline for a candidate to withdraw was 48 hours before the start of advance voting, which was at 8 a.m. on October 13.

Because those deadlines had passed when Mr. Throness resigned, he remained the BC Liberal candidate in Chilliwack-Kent and stayed on the ballot as such. Under the Election Act there was no way for his candidacy to be withdrawn after the deadlines established by the Act.

Another point of interest, given the large number of mail-in ballots, was in relation to any write-in ballots that may have already been cast for Mr. Throness. Would write in ballots marked "BC Liberal Party" still count as a vote for Mr. Throness? The answer was yes, because he was still the BC Liberal Party's candidate in Chilliwack-Kent from the Election Act's perspective.

Outreach program

In addition to our public awareness campaign, we also conducted outreach to raise awareness and promote participation in the election. Some outreach focused on groups that faced barriers to participating in the election. These outreach initiatives included the Student Vote program, sending information and materials to organizations across the province, distributing a Democracy in Box activity kit, and giving presentations in the community.

Student Vote program

Elections BC partnered with the non-partisan, national charity, CIVIX, to run the Student Vote program, which is a parallel election for students under the voting age that helps teach them about government and elections. An additional benefit is that Student Vote also often fosters discussion about election participation between students and their parents or caregivers. CIVIX recruits teachers to become Student Vote Team Leaders, distributes resource materials to schools (e.g. activity resources, election manuals, campaign posters), and provides learning materials to teachers. CIVIX coordinates a Student Vote Day where students take on the roles of election workers and cast ballots for an actual candidate. This year, 89,109 students cast a ballot. In total, 1,036 schools registered to participate in Student Vote, and 771 reported results.

Information and materials distribution

We distributed the Voter's Guide and educational materials to organizations throughout the province. We also asked these organizations to help share our resources with their stakeholders. Different organizations received different information, depending on the needs of their audience. For example, organizations that support new Canadian citizens were provided links to translated material and educational resources for new voters. In total, we:

- mailed 7,425 voter's guides to public libraries;
- mailed 4,350 voter's guides to 87 MLA constituency offices (note: Several packages were returned because many offices were closed due to the pandemic);
- emailed voting information and materials to the BC Assembly of First Nations (BCAFN) for distribution to all 203 First Nations in British Columbia (we also provided the BCAFN with Elections BC's "I Vote" images to include in their distribution of the materials);
- emailed voting information and materials to 62 organizations and 184 municipalities;
- emailed information about educational resources to over 200 teachers; and
- emailed digital voting materials upon request. For example, we emailed materials to CityHive (a youth-led Metro Vancouver-based organization working to transform the way that young people engage with cities and decision-makers) and to the Vancouver Community Action Team Coordinator (an individual that performs outreach to residents in Vancouver's Downtown Eastside).

Democracy in a Box Activity Kit

Elections BC received several requests for the Democracy in a Box Activity Kits. In total, we mailed 81 kits to 67 recipients across the province. The majority of the requests came from teachers, homeschooling parents, and Girl Guide leaders.

Outreach presentations

Elections BC conducted two virtual outreach presentations during the election period. The first presentation was hosted by Inclusion BC and 27 people attended. The attendees included people with disabilities, family members of people with disabilities and Inclusion BC staff. The second presentation was hosted by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind (CNIB). Fourteen people attended, including people with vision loss and CNIB staff. Both presentations were about 30 minutes long and they were followed by a 30-minute question and answer period.

Candidates and parties

Candidates and political parties also experienced a different election in 2020. For a scheduled election, candidates can file a standing nomination with the Chief Electoral Officer at any time until the end of the day before the election is called. For an unscheduled election, this deadline is extended to the end of the second day after the election is called. Candidates can also file ordinary nominations with the District Electoral Officer in their district starting on the day the election is called. Ordinary nominations can be filed until 1 p.m. on day seven of a scheduled general election or day 11 of an unscheduled general election. The deadline for candidates for the 2020 election to file their nomination was October 2.

Due to the unscheduled nature of the election, almost all candidates filed ordinary nominations. Of the 332 candidates nominated for the 2020 Provincial General Election, 96% filed ordinary nominations, compared to 29% of candidates in 2017. More than half filed in the last two days of the nomination period. The final day before the close of nominations saw the highest number of nominations filed.

Due to the pandemic, the Chief Electoral Officer issued an Order to permit nominators to make oral declarations instead of signing nomination documents. Candidates are ordinarily required to collect signatures from 75 eligible individuals as part of their nomination package. Allowing oral declarations provided a safe alternative to collecting signatures. Candidates or their political parties are required to retain contact information for nominators that completed an oral declaration until the next election.

There were 332 candidates in total; 308 represented 10 registered political parties and 24 candidates ran as independents. Both the BC Liberal Party and the Wexit BC Party attempted to withdraw their endorsements of a number of candidates (one BC Liberal and two Wexit BC); however, neither party met the deadline to withdraw their endorsements. These candidates remained on the ballot under the original endorsing party name.

In consultation with the Office of the Provincial Health Officer, Elections BC prepared resources and guidelines for political campaigns on how to campaign safely during the COVID-19 pandemic. While providing this information is outside our mandate, given the extraordinary circumstances of the COVID-19 pandemic, we shared this information on behalf of the Provincial Health Officer to help political campaigns conduct their activities safely. Candidates, political parties and their representatives were also encouraged to contact the Office of the Provincial Health Officer directly to discuss their safe campaigning plans.

Recognizing that campaigning often involves in-person activities such as rallies, fundraising functions, candidate nomination meetings, door-to-door canvassing and voter engagement, we prepared recommendations regarding campaign events, community engagement and campaign offices. Examples included providing barriers (plexiglass screens), physical distancing, a maximum of 50 properly distanced people at any event, assigned seating, maintaining distance between groups, collecting contact information for both indoor and outdoor events, and holding events outside or virtually wherever possible.

Election financing

Under the Election Act, candidates, political parties and constituency associations involved in the election must file election financing reports within 90 days after General Voting Day. Individuals and organizations that sponsor election advertising must register with Elections BC, and sponsors who sponsor election advertising with a value of more than $500 must file an election advertising disclosure report within 90 days after General Voting Day.

There are other reporting requirements for third parties that sponsor more than $10,000 in election advertising. They are required to file reports during the campaign period that disclose contributions (or multiple contributions) that have a total value greater than $250. These reports must be filed within 14 days of receiving a contribution from an individual who has contributed more than $250, and must be continually filed until General Voting Day.

Scanned reports for political participants, including report summaries and contributions received, are available on Elections BC's website. The filing deadline for the 2020 Provincial General Election reports was January 22, 2021.

Under the Election Act, eligible parties and candidates can submit claims to have some of their election expenses reimbursed. Eligible parties and candidates can be reimbursed for up to 50% of their eligible expenses, up to a maximum of 50% of the election expenses limit. 50% of the estimated claim must be paid to the financial agent of a party or candidate within 15 days after the claim and supporting receipts are filed. The remainder is paid after Elections BC reviews the report and supporting records and receipts. The amount of the second payment is adjusted if the party or candidate has claimed amounts not eligible for reimbursement.

Parties are eligible to have expenses reimbursed if they received at least 5% of the valid votes province-wide. Candidates are eligible if they received at least 10% of the valid votes in their electoral district. For the 2020 Provincial General Election, three political parties and 240 candidates received sufficient votes to qualify for election expense reimbursements.

The table below shows the parties eligible for election expense reimbursements, and the amounts they claimed when they filed their reports.

Table 6: Amount claimed for election expense reimbursement by party

Political party	Amount claimed for election expense reimbursement
BC Green Party	$300,774.59
BC Liberal Party	$1,552,198.27

Four third party advertising sponsors, one political party and one candidate did not file their election financing reports by the deadline. These filers were permitted to file by February 22, 2021 with a late filing fee of $500.

AFTER GENERAL VOTING DAY

Counting and recounts

Ordinary ballots from advance voting and general voting were counted at initial count, conducted after the close of voting on General Voting Day. These ballots represented approximately 64% of votes cast – a significant decrease from previous elections. In the 2017 Provincial General Election, approximately 90% of votes were counted on election night. This difference is due to the dramatic increase in vote-by-mail, which is a form of absentee voting.

Under the Election Act, candidates or their official agents can request a recount of some or all of the ballots considered at initial count within three days after General Voting Day. Recount requests can only be made where:

- the difference between the top two candidates is close (defined in the Election Act as 100 votes or fewer); or
- votes were not correctly accepted or ballots were not correctly rejected, or a ballot account does not accurately record the number of votes for a candidate.

One recount request was received for the Vancouver-Langara electoral district, on the basis that ballot accounts at one advance voting location did not accurately record the number of votes. The District Electoral Officer conducted a recount of votes cast at this advance voting location, which resulted in an increase of three valid votes for candidate Michael Lee, and a reduction of two valid votes each for candidates Tesicca Chi-Ying Truong and Stephanie Hendy.

Absentee ballots, including mail-in ballots, were considered at final count. The Election Act establishes that final count cannot begin until at least 13 days after General Voting Day. The period between General Voting Day and final count was needed to allow enough time for absentee ballots to be sent from the electoral district where they were cast to the voter's district of residence, where they must be counted. Absentee ballots underwent several screening checks before being accepted for counting to ensure election integrity. Certification envelopes containing the absentee ballots were checked to ensure that legislated requirements were met, including that the voter was eligible and registered to vote, and that they only voted once. This screening cannot happen until after General Voting Day to ensure that a voter who voted at advance or general voting could not also vote by mail or absentee.

Due in large part to the high volume of mail-in ballots to be considered at final count, the final count process was significantly different than in previous elections. More ballots were counted at final count for the 2020 Provincial General Election than in any past B.C. provincial election. Public health guidelines, including the requirement for physical distancing in work places, also impacted the final count process. Typically, final count is conducted in each district electoral office by the district electoral officer and their deputy. The large amount of absentee votes to be considered, and the need to properly physically distance, meant that alternative facilities were used in some districts. For example, the final count in Saanich South was conducted in Elections BC's warehouse. Other district electoral officers used voting places such as school gyms or community centres to conduct final count in a safe, physically distanced manner while still allowing candidates and their representatives to observe the count. Election officials worked in teams to count the ballots with the district electoral officer and deputy overseeing the count.

We were also prepared to extend the 13-day preparation period between General Voting Day and final count, and the count itself, if necessary for districts with extremely high volumes of certification envelopes to screen. Ensuring that the nearly 700,000 absentee ballots to be considered were delivered to the correct electoral district was a significant logistical challenge. We increased resources devoted to preparing for final count and established dedicated teams in each electoral district. The number of staff in each district was based on a formula driven by the number of absentee ballots in the district. One or more teams was completely focused on processing mail-in ballots in preparation for final count, while other teams worked on confirming the accuracy of results reported at initial count, shipping and receiving certification envelopes, and screening other types of absentee ballots. This was a dramatically different approach than in past elections with far fewer absentee ballots to count. In the past district electoral officers and their deputies did much of the work themselves related to preparing for final count and counting absentee ballots.

Despite these challenges, all 87 electoral districts began final count 13 days after General Voting Day and completed counting within three days. Final count for the 2020 Provincial General Election began on November 6 and concluded on November 8. The writs of election for 86 districts were returned on November 16.

At the conclusion of final count, one district, West Vancouver-Sea to Sky, was subject to an automatic judicial recount. An automatic judicial recount must take place when the difference between the top two candidates is less than 1/500 of the total ballots considered. In West Vancouver-Sea to Sky, the threshold for a judicial recount was 49 votes. The difference between the top two candidates was 41 votes, out of 24,769 ballots considered.

Judicial recounts are conducted by a Judge of the Supreme Court of British Columbia. Mr. Justice David A. Crerar of the Supreme Court of British Columbia conducted the judicial recount for West Vancouver-Sea to Sky on November 16 and 17, 2020. At the conclusion of the recount, Justice Crerar declared BC Liberal candidate Jordan Sturdy elected. As a result of the recount, the margin between Jordan Sturdy widened from 41 to 60 votes over the second-place candidate, Jeremy Valeriote of the BC Green Party. The writ of election for this district was returned on November 20, 2020, marking the end of the election period for the 2020 Provincial General Election.

Turnout

In total, 1,898,553 voters voted in the 2020 Provincial General Election. While this was 86,021 fewer than in the 2017 Provincial General Election, when 1,986,374 voters cast a ballot, it was the second highest total ever for a provincial election in B.C.

Changing voter behaviour

This was the first election in B.C. in which more voters voted before General Voting Day than on General Voting Day. The table below shows the percentage of votes that were cast at each type of voting opportunity in 2020 compared with 2017.

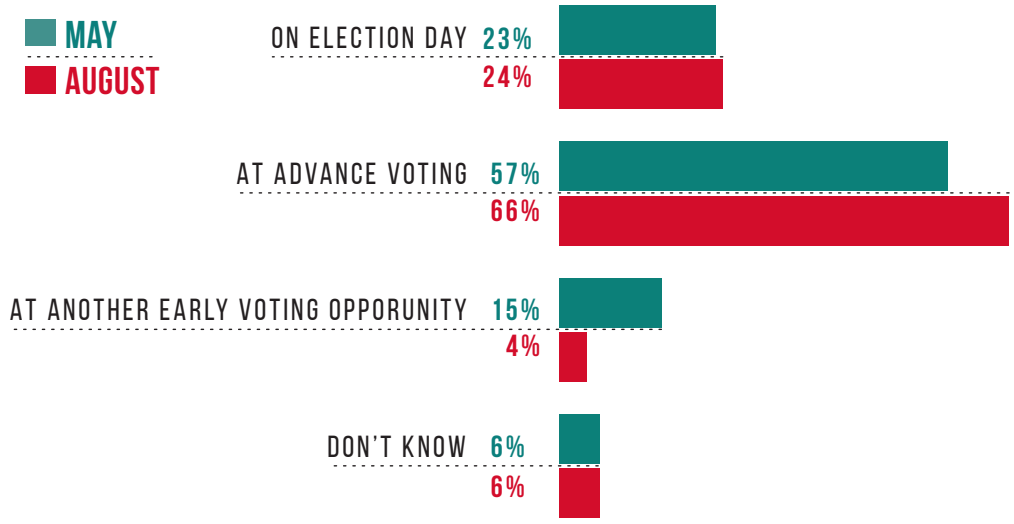
Table 11: Votes cast by voting opportunity, 2017 vs. 2020

Voting opportunity	Percentage of total votes cast in 2017	Percentage of total votes cast in 2020
Advance voting	30.2%	35.4%
Voting by mail	0.3%	31.4%
Absentee voting	8.7%	4.4%
Voting on General Voting Day	60.8%	28.8%

The proportion of voters who cast their ballot at advance voting has steadily increased, from 5.7% of voters in the 1996 provincial election to 35.4% in 2020. The increase in voters who chose to vote in advance this election is partially attributable to the extra day of advance voting that was added to give voters more options and help reduce the number of voters in a voting place at any one time.

In surveys conducted before the election, about two-thirds of respondents indicated a preference for voting in advance, in comparison to around a quarter who indicated they would prefer to vote on General Voting Day. During the election, we emphasized advance voting as an option for all voters in our public awareness campaign. In a survey conducted after the election, 89% of respondents indicated that they were aware that advance voting was an option available to all voters.[5]

Figure 16: Preference for in-person voting opportunities, as indicated by voters surveyed in May and August 2020



5 Mark Pickup, Laura B. Stephenson and Allison Harell, 2019 British Columbia Election Study, ND.

The largest change in voter behaviour in 2020 was the massive increase in voters who chose to vote by mail. A record 724,279 voters requested vote-by-mail packages, and 604,111 packages were returned by the close of voting, representing 83.4% of vote-by-mail packages issued. In the 2017 provincial election only 6,669 vote-by-mail packages were returned by the deadline, representing 59.2% of packages issued for that election.

The decrease in voting on General Voting Day is almost entirely accounted for by the increase in vote-by-mail. The proportion of voters who voted at another absentee voting opportunity also decreased. In previous elections, district electoral officers have established special absentee voting opportunities at care facilities or hospitals. For this election, district electoral officers instead coordinated voting by mail arrangements with many of these facilities as a pandemic safety measure.

Updating the voters list

Although general voter registration closed on September 26, all eligible voters were still able to register in conjunction with voting in person or by mail. 221,543 voters registered or updated their voter registration in conjunction with voting. These registration transactions were processed after General Voting Day by a dedicated team at Elections BC headquarters.

Voter participation, as well as registration information collected in conjunction with voting, were captured in paper voting books at voting places. In all, 6,277 voting books, one per voting area, were returned to Elections BC's secure receiving facility after final count for review and processing.

This process is essential to ensure that voter participation is captured accurately and that voters who registered to vote or updated their voter registration in conjunction with voting were added to the Provincial Voters List. The number of registered voters on General Voting Day and the final turnout rate for the election cannot be determined until this processing is complete. Review was also conducted during this process to check for instances of multiple voting and ensure that duplicate voter records were reconciled.

Elections BC expenses

The cost to administer the 2020 Provincial General Election was $51,603,932, or $14.64 per registered voter. Expenses for this election included unique costs associated with the pandemic, such as face masks and shields, gloves, transparent barriers, hand sanitizer, and disinfectant wipes. Other cost pressures contributed to a higher cost for this election compared to those in the past, such as:

- District electoral office and voting place rent
  Building occupancy costs, particularly in the Lower Mainland, have significantly increased since the last election. We also required larger voting places and district electoral offices to allow for physical distancing and other safe voting protocols.
- Postal services and general office expenses
  The significant increase in the use of vote-by-mail represented corresponding budget increases in postage, printing costs, information systems, and wages.
- Staffing costs
  Staffing costs increased due to an overall wage rate increase to align with the provincial increase to minimum wage. This affected the wages for our district electoral officers and their deputies, district electoral office support staff, and election officials. Although the overall number of election officials decreased compared to the last election the cost for election offical wages was higher due to the increased wage rate. Another factor in the increase of staffing costs was the new Employee Health Tax which applied to all staff that worked during the election.
- Transportation costs
  Transportation costs increased as a result of having to ship additional pandemic supplies to the district electoral offices and then to the voting places around the province.
- Advertising and publication costs
  Increased costs for advertising were necessary in order to communicate our safe voting protocols.
- Professional services
  Due to being in a minority government and in order to have our contact centre up and running on short notice we contracted services with Service BC to supplement our in-house contact centre. Additionally, we had drop-off locations for vote-by-mail packages at locations through-out the province.

Costs associated with maintaining a state of election readiness since 2017 are detailed in Table 13: Ongoing election readiness expenses on page 63. Costs associated with delivering the election are detailed in Table 14: Central office election expenses and Table 15: District electoral office expenses.

The minority government elected in 2017 required Elections BC to be ready for a provincial election on short notice. Many activities that are normally carried out in a staged fashion close to a fixed-date election were fast-tracked: district electoral officers and deputies were appointed and received ongoing training, EBC's warehouse was stocked with supplies and recruitment strategies were put in place. The expenses shown above in Table 13 only include costs required to maintain ongoing readiness, such as: salaries and benefits for district electoral officers (DEOs) and their deputies (DDEOs) to maintain contact with headquarters and to complete training and assignments; information systems (DEO/DDEO cell phones, IDIR, email, VPN network); building occupancy for additional warehouse space; storage costs for district electoral office furniture, and district electoral office rent for July/August 2017.

Additionally, we also purchased many supplies in advance that were required to administer the election, such as printed materials, office supplies for district electoral offices, and equipment. These expenses are included in Table 14 on page 64 under the central office expenses for the delivery of the election.

Appendix A: Orders of the Chief Electoral Officer

Section 280 of the Election Act gives the Chief Electoral Officer the power to issue Orders to vary from the Act if necessary because of an emergency, mistake or extraordinary circumstance. Typically Orders of the CEO are reactive, responding to issues that arise during an election. Errors made by voters or election officials may result in an Order being issued to rectify the mistake.

However, some of the adaptations we developed to conduct the election safely required variance from procedures established in the Election Act. These variances were accomplished through Orders of the Chief Electoral Officer. This was the first time Orders have been issued proactively to address a provincial election held during a state of emergency. Elections BC reviewed the variances that would be necessary in a pandemic election in a meeting with the Election Advisory Committee in August 2020[6]. Many of the Orders were based on legislative changes found in the Election Amendment Act, 2019. At the time of the election these changes had been passed by the Legislative Assembly, but had not yet been brought into force.

The Chief Electoral Officer issued 74 Orders related to the 2020 Provincial General Election. Summaries of the Orders are provided below.

ORD005-2020
September 11, 2020
In response to the COVID-19 pandemic and public health orders requiring social distancing, requirements for the provision of nominator signatures in relation to standing nominations were modified. Nominators were permitted to make oral declarations in place of providing written declarations and signatures. The individual witnessing the oral declarations was required to submit a signed written declaration attesting to the accuracy of the information in the oral declarations and retain the contact information of nominators until the end of the retention period established under s. 276 (2) of the Election Act.

ORD006-2020
September 21, 2020
Due to the declaration of a public health emergency and general state of emergency in the province in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, public health orders required the use of personal protective equipment in situations where social distancing cannot be maintained. The value of personal protective equipment obtained by provincial political parties and provincial candidates was not subject to election expense limits provided the equipment did not include any partisan messaging, imaging or branding or election advertising.

6 The composition of the Election Advisory Committee is established in s.14 of the Election Act. Committee members include the Chief Electoral Officer, two representatives for each registered political party that is represented in the Legislative Assembly, and one representative for each registered political party that had candidates in at least half of all electoral districts in the most recent provincial general election. At the time of this meeting, the BC Green Party, BC NDP, and BC Liberal Party were represented on the Committee.

September 21, 2020
Due to the declaration of a public health emergency and general state of emergency in the province in response to the COVID-19 pandemic and the snap election call, there were delays in obtaining appropriate district electoral office locations. The notice of election was not required to list the locations of district electoral offices if they were not yet confirmed, and the notice was also required to include an Elections BC-authorized internet site where addresses would be published once they were confirmed.

ORD008-2020
September 21, 2020
In response to the COVID-19 pandemic and public health orders requiring social distancing, alternative absentee voting (vote by mail) processes were modified to remove eligibility requirements and expand availability of vote by mail to all interested voters, and to allow for modifications to voting materials, voting procedures, receiving requirements and voter participation information about vote by mail package requests and returns.

ORD009-2020
September 21, 2020
In response to the COVID-19 pandemic and public health orders requiring social distancing, the number of election officials required to be present during voting and counting proceedings was limited, and the Chief Electoral Officer and/or district electoral officers were able to limit the number of candidate representatives entitled to be present at voting and counting proceedings. Candidate representatives were restricted from inspecting voting books and related materials at voting proceedings and were required to follow voting place safety requirements.

ORD010-2020
September 21, 2020
In response to the COVID-19 pandemic and public health orders requiring social distancing, oral declarations were allowed to be made in place of written declarations wherever a written declaration was required under the Election Act, and oral declarations were allowed to be made in place of solemn declarations for certain situations where solemn declarations were required. The oral declarations replaced requirements for signatures on certification envelopes at in-person voting options. Persons vouching for voters at special voting opportunities and care facilities were also permitted to vouch for more than one person.

ORD011-2020
September 21, 2020
In response to the COVID-19 pandemic and public health orders requiring social distancing, voting procedures were modified to address ballot counterfoil disposal and to remove the requirement for voters to use advance voting certificates and sign the voting book.

ORD060-2020
November 2, 2020
Due to election official error, multiple voters were issued stuck-together secrecy envelopes or sleeves at voting opportunities or in their alternative absentee (vote by mail) packages. At final count, if a voter's certification envelop was found to contain more than one secrecy envelopes/sleeve and only one contains a ballot, that ballot was considered at final count and the extra secrecy envelopes/sleeves was treated per final count procedures. If a voter's certification envelope was found to contain more than one secrecy envelope/sleeve and 2 or more of the envelopes/sleeves contained a ballot, the secrecy envelopes/sleeves and ballots were re-sealed in their certification envelopes and were not considered at final count.

ORD061-2020
November 2, 2020
An election official administering voting at an advance voting opportunity erred by placing a voter's ordinary ballot placed into a certification envelope. The certification envelope and ballot of the affected voter were permitted to be considered at final count as they had been administered correctly under s. 99 of the Election Act.

ORD062-2020
November 2, 2020
Due to election official error, voters voting alternative absentee at the office of a district electoral officer were issued ordinary ballots instead of write-in ballots. The ballots were placed in certification envelopes before being placed in the ballot box. The affected ballots were permitted to be considered at final count as if they were correctly administered under s. 104 of the Election Act.

ORD063-2020
November 2, 2020
Election officials assisting voters with their alternative absentee (vote by mail) packages at a care home erred by entering their own birthdates on certification envelopes instead of voters' birthdates. The certification envelopes and ballot of affected voters were allowed to be considered at final count as if the election officials had correctly completed the shared secret requirement for each voter.

ORD064-2020
November 2, 2020
Election officials administering voting at a special voting opportunity and election officials administering absentee voting at a general voting opportunity erred by placing voters' ballots directly into ballot boxes without secrecy and certification envelopes. Election officials further erred by placing loose ballots into their corresponding certification envelopes during initial count without obtaining proper authorization. The affected ballots were allowed to be considered at final count as if they had been administered correctly under s. 98, s. 99 and s. 100 of the Election Act.

ORD065-2020
November 3, 2020
Upon opening the ballot box in accordance with s. 95 of the Election Act, election officials who had administered voting at a special voting opportunity removed secrecy envelopes from certification envelopes and placed secrecy envelopes back in the ballot box, then placed the empty certification envelopes in the ballot box. The ballots in loose secrecy envelopes were allowed to be considered at final as if they were cast under s. 135 of the Election Act provided the certification envelopes met the requirements under s. 134 of the Election Act. If any of the certification envelopes could not be located or did not meet the requirements under s. 134, all open certification envelopes and sealed secrecy envelopes were required to be set aside and not considered at final count.

ORD066-2020
November 4, 2020
Election officials administering absentee voting at advance and general voting opportunities placed ballots directly in ballot boxes without secrecy and certification envelopes. In each case, there was no more than one loose ballot per box. At initial count, election officials retrieved the loose ballots and placed them in secrecy envelopes and completed certification envelopes. The certification envelopes and ballots were allowed to be considered at final count as if they had been correctly administered under ss. 99 and 101 of the Election Act.

ORD067-2020
November 4, 2020
A First Nations community in the Peace River North electoral district requested the provision of alternative absentee voting packages in lieu of Elections BC deploying a mobile voting team or requiring community members to travel outside of the community to vote. Due to election official error, the compressed timelines necessitated by a snap election and the extraordinary circumstances caused by the declaration of a provincial health emergency, multiple voters faced barriers in providing identification, completing the vouching process and completing their vote-by-mail packages as required under EA-ORD008-2020. The vote-by-mail packages of the affected voters were evaluated against an Attestation of Voter Eligibility form that was attached to the Order. Provided the voter's name appeared in the form, the voter's vote-by-mail package was considered at final count as if it had been properly completed.

ORD068-2020
November 7, 2020
Due to inclement weather, some election officials administering voting in the electoral district of North Coast were unable to deliver election materials to their district electoral officer following the conclusion of initial count, and voting materials from several specified communities could be delivered in time for absentee ballots to be considered at final count. The district electoral officers in the electoral districts of North Coast and North Island were permitted to facilitate counting the certification envelopes and ballots included in the voting materials on behalf of any district electoral officers for affected voters. The district electoral officers were required to follow the procedures set out in a schedule to the Order and complete a form included in a schedule to the Order.

ORD069-2020
November 5, 2020
Two voters attended a general voting opportunity to vote absentee, the first intending to register and the second already registered to vote. An election official erred in providing a ballot and certification envelope intended for the registered voter to the unregistered voter, who voted using this incorrect ballot and certification envelope. The second voter voted under s.112 of the Election Act. The election official further erred by allowing first voter to register and vote again under their own name, and all of the ballots and certification envelopes were placed in the ballot box. The certification envelopes were allowed to be identified by barcode, and the certification envelope and ballot completed in error by the first voter were set aside. The first voter's correctly completed certification envelope and ballot and the second voter's certification envelope and ballot cast under s. 112 were considered as if they were the only certification envelopes and ballots prepared and cast by the voters, and were considered at final count.

ORD070-2020
November 5, 2020
An election official at a general voting opportunity erred by issuing a voter two stuck-together write-in ballots. The election official created two certification envelopes and placed each ballot in a completed envelope, then placed each in the ballot box. During preparations for final count, two other election officials were required to confidentially open each certification envelope and check if the enclosed ballot was marked or blank, indicate such on the certification envelope, then return the envelopes to the responsible election official. If both envelopes were marked, they were set aside; if only one was marked, that certification envelope and ballot was to be considered at final count as if it was the only certification envelope and ballot prepared and cast.

ORD071-2020
November 5, 2020
An election official at a general voting opportunity erred by issuing voters write-in ballots instead of ordinary ballots. The voters were provided with the correct list of candidates for their electoral district, and the ballots were placed in secrecy and certification envelopes. The ballots were allowed to be considered as if they had been correctly administered under s. 100 of the Election Act.

ORD072-2020
November 5, 2020
An election official assisting voters with alternative absentee (vote by mail) packages at a care home incorrectly completed vouching forms instead of the required confirmation of residence forms for voters who did not have a second piece of ID. When the mistake was discovered, the election official completed the confirmation of residence forms. The applications for registration and confirmation of residence forms were considered as if they were correctly completed and included with the voters' vote-by-mail packages, and the voters' certification envelopes and ballots were considered at final count.

ORD073-2020
November 5, 2020
Election officials administering voting at a district electoral office issued ordinary ballots instead of write-in ballots to voters attending the office to vote under s. 104 of the Election Act. The ballots were placed in secrecy and certification envelopes. The certification envelopes and ballot were allowed to be considered at final count as if they were correctly administered under s. 104.

ORD074-2020
November 17, 2020
District electoral officers in several electoral districts completed the writs of election before the required return date of the writes. After the required judicial recount period, the writ of election for each of the specified electoral districts was permitted to be accepted as if it was correctly completed by the district electoral officer and returned to the Chief Electoral Officer in accordance with s. 146 of the Election Act.

ORD001-2021
January 22, 2021
Due to complications originating from the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, a political party and the financial agents for three candidates were unable to file electoral financing reports (EFRs) for the 2020 Provincial General Election by the deadline of January 22, 2021. Due to complications related to family matters, the financial agents for two candidates were unable to file EFRs for the 2020 Provincial General Election by the deadline of January 22, 2021. The filing deadlines for the EFRs of the party and four candidates were extended to February 22, 2021, and the filing deadline for the EFR of one candidate was extended to February 16, 2021.

Appendix B: District Electoral Officers, Deputy District Electoral Officers and Regional Field Officers

A District Electoral Officer (DEO) is appointed by the Chief Electoral Officer for each electoral district. DEOs are responsible for conducting elections in their assigned electoral district. They are assisted by one or more Deputy District Electoral Officers (DDEOs), who are also appointed by the Chief Electoral Officer.

In some electoral districts, two district electoral offices are required to ensure accessibility. In those cases, a second DDEO is appointed to manage the additional office.

Regional Field Officers (RFOs) provide an additional level of advice and support to DEOs and DDEOs, and often serve as a link between field staff and Elections BC headquarters. RFOs are responsible for a geographic region of the province that encompasses several electoral districts.

For the 2020 Provincial General Election, the Chief Electoral Officer appointed 87 DEOs, 88 DDEOs and six RFOs.
